STUDIOMETRY is a scheduling, time tracking and task management application for entrepreneurs, students, and individuals looking to take back control of their day and improve time management. Supported platforms: Mac OSX, WindowsUnited Nations Security Council Resolution 1290 United Nations Security Council resolution 1290, adopted unanimously on 10 October 1999, after reaffirming all resolutions on the situation between Israel and the Palestinian territories, particularly Resolution 1176 (1998) and noting a recent string of suicide bombings by Palestinian militants, the Council condemned in the strongest terms all acts of violence committed by both parties and determined that no party shall benefit from such acts. The Council also called for the immediate resumption of negotiations in the Middle East peace process and urged the parties to refrain from violence and the need to prevent acts that could hinder negotiations. It went on to declare that a peaceful settlement between the parties must be supported and called upon the parties to fully respect their obligations under relevant agreements including the Oslo Accords. The Council re-emphasised the need to promote a culture of peace and respect for human rights and international humanitarian law. The resolution went on to affirm that any resolution or political settlement must be based on the pre-1967 borders with mutually agreed upon land swaps, noting that the Israeli settlement policy was illegal under international law. In conclusion, the Council urged the parties to ensure that acts committed by civilians did not affect the peace process. All members of the Security Council supported the resolution, with the exception of Iraq.
