Q: Is there a way to find users with more than 500 questions?

Possible Duplicate: How do I find users with more than 100 reputation? Is there a way to find users with more than 500 questions? I need to find the top 100 users from this site with more than 500 questions. I need to be able to perform a bulk deletion of these users if they are not consistent high quality contributors. A: There's no way to do this, unfortunately. This has been raised in the past and it was rejected. A reason for this decision was that people that hit 500 reputation frequently do so due to acquiring 200 reputation by asking a single question. They can then delete their own question at that point, and their points will come back the next day, or even the next week. The reasoning behind the rejection was: The number of 500 users is very small. If people are really having trouble finding users with 500+ questions, they can use some of the questions on the sites they use more frequently and search for any users who have questions at 500 or over. The site is a great resource for finding good content.
